Elizabeth Arden New York City Present Day. The building's image changed somewhat in 1930 when a bright red door was installed in the building's store at 691 Fifth Avenue heralding the flagship salon for Elizabeth Arden, who was formerly known as Florence Nightingale Graham. The Elizabeth Arden Company and its salon are still tenants today. The building set a new retail leasing record in 1970 when Gucci agreed to pay $100 a square foot a year for the corner store.
